KR 94.5—as it is known—gives the people of Ganta, Liberia and the surrounding areas plenty of talk radio, especially politics, culture, and the weekend's football results. The community station was born in 2004 after the Liberian conflict but never broadcast news and information about agriculture, the main livelihood of the majority of the listeners. Now, Chester is changing the radio's programming to include information about agriculture productivity for Liberian families.
